BRITON SAYS GERMAN MUST ASK RESPITE IN PAYMENTS

Sir John Bradbury Is Emphatic Against Any Long Delay

BANKS TROUBLED

Rumor Of Moratorium Hits Shareholders And Price Levels Collapse

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Dec. 1.—Interviewed by a correspondent of the Intransigeant, Sir John Bradbury declared that a moratorium could not be considered unless Germany formally requested it. She had hitherto not done so. The unanimous vote of the Reparations Commission was required before a very long deferment of payment could be granted. Sir John Bradbury said he would oppose such a step as being disastrous to the Allies and the world.

FAILURES EXPECTED

Berlin, Dec. 1.—The improvement of the mark following reports that the British were granting a moratorium produced reaction on the share market, price levels collapsing through panic offering. Several small banks lost enormously and serious complications and failures are expected.

SICCAWEI GIVES REPORT ON QUAKE THAT SHOOK CITY

The earthquake felt Thursday evening here is what should be termed a "moderate local shock," according to the report issued by the Siccawei Observatory yesterday, which report also tells of another tremor of twenty-five minutes' duration registered early yesterday morning.

The disturbance began, the report states, at 32 seconds past 6:50 p.m. according to the Wiechert Horizontal astatic pendulum. Ten seconds later the E. W. component pen of the instrument was violently hurled away and was found after a search upon the ground. The N. S. pen kept on writing until 36 seconds after the first shock and then jumped off. By means of this data and thanks to the Omori seismoscope, designed to cope with violent shocks, the distance of the epicenter was roughly calculated at between 100 and 200 km. from Siccawei. The component most affected was the N. S. and as the Galitzin apparatus, the most sensitive of all instruments in the Far East, was too much entangled, it was only possible to give the probable direction of the epicenter as South-Southwest of Shanghai. The observatory report points out that the Northwest part of Chekiang has been subject to many seismic disturbances in former days.

According to the Omori seismogram the shock which could be easily felt by people here should have lasted one minute and a half. The whole seismogram, according to the Galitzin apparatus, recorded a waving of the earth's crust enduring almost two hours, but of a gentle nature. To the early morning yesterday all four instruments at the observatory registered a second shock, beginning at 1:55 and ending at 2:20 a.m. The epicenter of this quake was clearly indicated as being about 1,000 km. from Siccawei, but as the tracing was extremely light it was impossible by it to locate more exactly the origin of the shock which caused the excitement in Shangai earlier in the night.

Fancy Dress Ball Tonight Will Be Crowning Feature Of Shanghai's Auto Show

Carlton Orchestra And Municipal Band To Supply Music For Big Affair—Program Given By Shriners Biggest Success Of Week

Now is the time for all good men—and the lesser lights as well—to go to the Auto Show, for tonight's the Big Night, and it may be said here that it will be just as well to start early, for certain 'tis, there's going to be one crush.

This is the night of the fancy dress ball, and while new attractions are being arranged for the four additional days of the Auto Show, it is generally accepted that the gala occasion of the wonderful exposition is set for tonight.

Major Domo Ellis in charge of the Carlton's part of the big show has reserved everything except the bandstand for the special dinner that he will provide and before the evening grows very old it's more than half likely he'll have to drape Maestro Barron with his grand piano and Aleck with all of his drums together with the other jazziteers around one of the center poles of the place. Surely, it's going to be some evening.

PRIZES FOR SCENERY

It might be mentioned along about here that special scenic effects in the shape of adornment—or maybe the lack of it—will meet with proper recognition, this being an idea fostered by Louis Ladow, the presiding genius of the merry-merry end of the big party. The idea is, in the words of the announcement, that "a number of particularly handsome and valuable prizes for the most striking, original and beautiful dresses" are to be thrust upon those of talent and originality and the announcement goes on to say that special music will be played by the Carlton orchestra to help things along.

There's no chance to tell in a couple of newspaper columns just what all will happen at the Auto Show party tonight. Besides the music of the ball room, the Municipal Band will be there and doubtless any overflow from big dancing pavilion will be afforded every opportunity to carry the dance out into the spacious aisles of the main exhibition hall.

It is to be mentioned particularly also that Mlle. Nora Levestam, the noted Danish prima donna who is now visiting Shanghai, has consented to favor tonight's gathering with several selections and a number of other entertainment features will be provided.

CROWD OUT LAST NIGHT

Full evidence that the Auto Show has just begun to grow in popularity was given last night when the attendance went far over all preceding records. All credit is due to the Mystic Shriners of Shanghai for making last night's entertainment perhaps the most successful given so far at the Auto Show.

Mr. Leon Friedman of the Entertainment Committee led the costumed detachment of Shriners in full regalia into the center of things. Following a drill that called forth rounds of applause, the Shriner minstrel aggregation with its full chorus in black face put in appearance and the program of specialties given made the onlookers wish that the show would go on all night and then some.

Also it is fairly evident that the Auto Show is to be an unqualified success, for according to records last night more than Tls. 100,000 in cars are now sold.

And again this evening Mr. Aaron Glenby will sing "Goodbye Blues," the tuneful waltz song written by Miss Eleanor Kemp and Mr. Mina Silas which won THE CHINA PRESS-EVENING STAR song contest. He will give also the fox trot "Hoot" which was accorded second place in the contest.

In conclusion it is to be added that THE CHINA PRESS-EVENING STAR booth continues to be a center of interest for the throngs and the response here to the special reduced subscription rates for the two papers, along with chances to win the Wyllis-Knight and Dodge cars, demonstrates again that Shanghai folk know a good thing when they see it. In short, the tickets are still selling at the same old price—five bucks a throw.

SINN FEIN MUST SWEAR FEALTY IS NEW DEMAND

(U. S. Navy Radio Through Reuter)

London, Nov. 29.—It is authoritatively announced that Mr. Lloyd George will endeavor to formulate a new proposal on the Irish settlement, following Ulster's refusal of the original offer.

Government circles express the belief that the Irish Conference is doubtful as a result of the recent difficulties. It is believed that a resumption of armed hostilities would not possibly be postponed as an alternative to a settlement.

The plans submitted to Sinn Fein last night included the necessity of Sinn Fein definitely swearing allegiance to the Crown.

WORKERS NAMED TO ARRANGE FOR WASHINGTON BALL

Committees were organised and general plans were outlined yesterday at a meeting at the residence of Mr. E. S. Cunningham, American Consul-General for the observance of the American holiday of Washington's Birthday on February 22. In accordance with the custom of other years the celebration is to take the form of a Washington's Brithday Ball which will take place at the Town Hall. This is the outstanding American social event of the year.

Mr. Cunningham heads the general committee that will have charge of the affair. The members of this committee are: Mr. V. G. Lyman, President of the American Chamber of Commerce; Mr. T. E. Doremus, President of the American Association; Dr. W. F. Findley, President of the American Club; Capt. V. Olsen, Commander of the American Company of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps and Messrs. H. H. Arnold, J. J. Gallagher, C. W. Atkinson, A. B. Rosenfeld, F. V. Reilly, A. R. Hager, C. F. Gorman, H. F. Kay, R. F. Wilner, J. E. Doyle, H. K. Devault, E. S. J. Phillips, F. J. Raven, Carl Crow, F. J. Twogood, J. J. Keegan, W. E. Sauer, O. G. Steen, and Maj. C. P. Holcomb, United States District Attorney.

Those named to serve on the Decorations Committee are Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld, Chairman; W. E. Sauer, E. S. J. Phillips and C. F. Gorman.

Those to serve on the Committee on Refreshments are Doctor Findley and H. H. Arnold. Sgt. A. T. Cooper of the American Company, S. V. C. is a committee of one to look after transportation and other facilities.

The members of the Committee on Finance and Subscriptions is composed of Messrs. F. V. Reilly, A. R. Hager, H. K. De Vault, and J. J. Gallagher. Mr. J. E. Doyde of THE EVENING STAR and Mr. Carl Crow form the Publicity Committee.

Sgt. H. F. Kay of the American Company, S. V. C. has assumed the duties of Secretary Treasurer and Mr. R. F. Wisner those of Recording Secretary.

It is announced that the number of invitations for the ball will be limited to one thousand.

Demands have been made to the Japanese concern through the Customs House for compensation for the loss of lives and property incurred in the accident.

Porcelain Invented To Save Heads Of Husbands

By Elsie McCormick

One of the 999 questions which Mr. Edison believed all candidates should answer successfully before being allowed to sweep up his laboratory was, "Where do the finest porcelains in the world come from?" The answer he marked correct was "Sevres, France," which proves that as an art critic Mr. Edison is a good electrician. It is true, of course, that Sevres does produce porcelain as thin as an egg-shell or a Shanghai husband's excuse after an evening at the club, but Mr. Edison forgets that China was rationing itself from refined crockery when the inhabitants of Sevres, France, were still stirring the stew with thighbones.

According to old Mr. John W. Statistic, aided by his stepbrother, Mr. Henry G. Legend, China first showed symptoms of porcelain about 206 B.C. Before that the Chinese used cumbersome vessels of stone or heavy earth, and it is our theory that the lighter table ware was invented by a guild of exasperated husbands who found a rock platter somewhat uncomfortable when used as an argument. Anyway, somebody worked up the idea during the Han Dynasty, and while the husbands might have found paper pie plates more satisfactory, they at least admitted that porcelain was an improvement.

Decomposed felspar and a white, hard, fusible quartz formed the body of porcelain, the glaze being obtained by mixing the ashes of a certain fern with silicate. Early in the history of porcelain, the industry secured the full-time services of a special deity. It happened that an Emperor ordered a certain type of vases that the artisans were unable to produce. Reduced at last to champion heavyweight despair, the chief workingman walked into the roaring furnace where the unsatisfactory wares were baking for the dozenth time.

HIS BONES DID IT

Something in the composition of his bones or his collar-button must have been what the porcelain required, because when the dishes were removed they fitted the Emperor's orders as well as a banana skin does a banana. The overcooked workman was accordingly put up by the Republican Party at the next election and voted the special deity of Porcelain and Toasted Marshmallows by an overwhelming majority.

Emperors often resorted to strong-arm methods in carrying out their ideas on the subject of chinaware. A high official asked one of the early missionaries to bring some samples of European pottery to China, so that he might have some pieces copied as a gift to the Emperor. Before the request was twenty-four hours old, the missionary was visited by a deputation of Christian workingmen who begged him not to bring the specimens. They had a grim understanding of what would happen to them in case they couldn't copy the pieces accurately.

MING WELL ADVERTISED

The high-water mark of the porcelain industry was reached during the Ming Dynasty, which was either the most illustrious of all the dynasties or else had the best press-agent. In the city of Kingtechen, not far from Nanking, the ceramic art concentrated itself to such an extent that the place boasted of 3,000 furnaces and a million inhabitants. We don't know whether these statistics were made from a regular census report or in a campaign of the city's Chamber of Commerce, but at any rate the town was so rich that there was a policeman for every ten houses and visiting strangers, unless they had a friend who was willing to guarantee their good conduct, were obliged to remain on their boats. Kingtechen, unlike certain California cities, at least didn't inflate her population statistics by counting everybody in the hotels. There weren't any.

The city was destroyed finally by the playful little Tai-

JAPAN MAY PLAN SHREWD BARGAIN IN RETURN FOR AGREEMENT AS TO NAVY

Bitter Arraignment Of Japanese For Their Violation Of China's Sovereignty Is Made By Alfred Sze—Other Powers Also Rapped For Troops And Other Infringments

NAVAL QUESTION NOW NEAR CRISIS

Manchuria And Shantung Soon To Draw Fire Of Conference—Extraterritoriality Committee May Be Empowered To Probe Other Matters

(Trans-Pacific Public Ledger—China Press Exclusive Service)

Washington, Dec. 1.—Bitter arraignment has been made of Japan for alleged violation of China soil. Dr. Alfred Sze presenting China's case against the continued presence of foreign troops and police on her soil, called particular attention to the preponderance of Japanese offenses against China's sovereignty.

Troops, railway guards and police boxes, wireless and what-not—the arraignment included all the powers, but especially was directed at Japan. The subject was referred to a committee and it is now believed that the commission to investigate the removal of extraterritoriality may be charged with the investigation of other infractions of Chinese rights. This commission will include China who will have the right to refuse agreement with its findings.

It is expected that the Japanese will make a full statement regarding their position in the leased territories and Manchuria and will oppose their removal as requested. This is expected to draw the first fire of the conference over political issues.

It is reported that Japan may offer to withdraw from Hankow in return for permission to hold her lines as at present in Manchuria and Mongolia. In fact many delegates to the Conference is now convinced that the Japanese are preparing some shrewd bargain and all their obstructionist tactics are shaping to that end.

The Far East Committee is in daily session and is rapidly getting all subjects in shape for submission to the decision of the conference.

The naval question has reached its crisis and is transcending all purely political questions which will not reach their crisis until next week.

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Dec. 1.—A demonstration in favor of the unconditional return of Shantung was made by Chinese before the headquarters of the Chinese Delegation today.

The crowd consisted of Chinese students and merchants augmented by a score of Chinese brought here on account of the Conference. The demonstration occurred just as the Chinese were departing for the initial conversation with the Japanese on Shantung.

There was no disorder, the crowd gradually dispersing after speeches by three of the Chinese delegates.

Washington, Dec. 2.—It is officially announced that the first Shantung conference yesterday was attended by Mr. Alfred Sze, Dr. Wellington Koo and Dr. Wang Chung-hui, accompanied by Messrs. Tyau, Wang Hau and Chao Kuo (China); and Admiral Baron Kato, Mr. Hanihara and Mr. Debuchi, accompanied by Messrs. Saburi, Kimura, Saito and Shiratori (Japan). Secretary of State Hughes and Mr. Balfour opened the meeting, which discussed procedure.

FAVORS BRITISH NAVY

London, Dec. 2.—The labors of the naval experts have revealed an extraordinary oversight in the drafting of Mr. Hughes's naval holiday proposals, possibly invalidating the whole scheme. It appears that at the end of the ten years' naval holiday, Great Britain would be entitled to build twelve dreadnoughts of 35,000 tons each, replacing ships twenty years old, giving Britain an overwhelming superiority to all the navies of the world, as the United States would only be entitled to four and Japan one new dreadnought. The position would be reversed six years later when the preponderance would pass to America.

The discovery was made by the British experts and submitted to the Americans, who reluctantly acquiesced, agreeing that the scheme would be more likely to provoke war than guarantee peace.

It is reliably learned that the experts are examining a new proposal whereby, while adhering to

GOOD PROGRAM IN PAN-PACIFIC MEETING TODAY

A large attendance is expected at the Pan-Pacific Association tiffin at the Carlton Cafe today, when an unusually interesting program of speaking will be heard.

The meeting is to be presided over by Mr. C. F. Hsu, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, and the speakers will be Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College; Major-General W. M. Black and Dr. Kenyon L. Butterfield, president of Massachussetts Agricultural College.

Dr. Woolley, who is a widely known educator at present in China as a member of the China Educational Commission, will speak on the subject "A New Factor in World Policies." Major-General Black, who has been chairman of the committee of consulting engineers who have just turned in their report on Shanghai harbor development, will talk on "The Whangpoo Conservancy." Dr. Butterfield's subject is "World Agriculture."

The meeting is an open one and ladies may attend. It will begin at 12:15 o'clock and the program has been arranged so that the conclusion will come not later than 2 p.m.

AUTO SHOW TO BE EXTENDED UNTIL WEDNESDAY

the Hughes tonnage ratios, the United States and Great Britain will each be entitled to build two battleships every three years, thus keeping in employment skilled artisans and also the very valuable armor-plating and gun-making plants which would otherwise have to be subsidised.

It is pointed out that according to the new scheme Japan will be allowed to keep the Mutsu. The Japanese attitude is regarded as the key to the whole Conference.

It is reported that the unanimous opinion of the American and British delegations regards Japan's insistence for more battleships as unwarranted, but the Japanese are skilled bargainers and desire, before finally committing themselves, to ascertain America's decision regarding the fortification of naval bases in the Pacific and are also wishful of awaiting the outcome of the deliberations of the Far Eastern Committee regarding China.

SHANTUNG PARLEY OPENED

(Eastern News Agency)

Washington, Nov. 30.—It has been decided that direct negotiations will be opened here between the delegations of Japan and China on December 1, absolutely independently of the Washington Conference. By the negotiations, it is expected, fundamental principles of the Shantung issue will be settled.

The reason for reaching the above decision is, it is understood, due to the fact that as the Conference progresses the delegates of Japan and China have come to comprehend each other's fair and just attitude, and that the United States, Great Britain and other Powers also wish to see the Shantung issue settled through direct negotiations between the two countries.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Information comes from Japanese sources that naval experts of the United States and Japan have agreed to disagree on the question of the measurement of existing naval strengths of the various countries and therefore on the question of the tonnage ratio.

The Americans proposed that the problem be turned over to the chief delegates following the break among naval experts owing to Japan's insistence on the seventy percent ratio.

LLOYD GEORGE TO GO?

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Dec. 1.—According to the London Times it is now considered in British Ministerial circles that, if the Irish situation is settled, Mr. Lloyd George will be able to leave for Washington during the latter half of December.

JAPAN WEAKENS?

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Dec. 1.—The Temps learns that opposition to the fixing of the Japanese naval percentage according to the Hughes proposal is diminishing in Japan. Public opinion generally now inclines to concessions but insists on the preservation of the new cruiser, Mutsu.

EXPERTS BACK U. S.

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Dec. 1.—The naval experts substantially approve the accuracy of the American estimate as to naval strength if all ships under construction are included.

The Japanese insist this is an improper basis, proposing on the other hand to disregard the ships in building and only consider vessels in actual fighting trim. It is assumed that the American and Japanese delegates will try to go through formal exchanges which might last several days.

There is strong feeling in American and British circles that Japan will ultimately accept the American plan and ratio. They believe that Japan has not shown a sound claim to 70 percent. However, there is an expectation that any offer of Japan to accept the "5-3-5" ratio will be conditional upon an agreement to build up naval bases. This question has not yet been brought up.

JAPANESE PROTEST

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Dec. 1.—Mr. Hanihara, in the course of his speech before the Far Eastern Committee today, pointed out that the Japanese Consular Police in China did not interfere with the Chinese or other foreign nations as their functions were strictly confined to the protection and control of Japanese.

Without the full co-operation of the Japanese police the punishment of crime in many cases was impossible, especially in Manchuria, where thousands of Japanese are resident.

There were far fewer cases of crime among Japanese where Japanese police were stationed than where there were no Japanese police at present but Chinese.

The Japanese police provided protection for Chinese communities which their organisation failed to provide.

WIRELESS COMMITTEE

The drafting Committee on wireless stations in China is composed as follows: United States, Senator Root; Belgium, Baron de Cartier de Marchienne and alternately M. Cattiex; British Empire, Sir Auckland Geddes and alternately Mr. Gordon (?), Sir John Jordan and Mr. Miles Lampson, with Mr. H. W. Malkin as drafting adviser; China, Dr. Wellington Koo; France, M. Viviani; Italy, Signor Ricci; Japan, Mr. Hanihara; the Netherlands, Jonkeer van Karnebeek; Portugal, Senhor Dalter.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The outstanding feature of today's proceedings is the meeting of the Committee of Three consisting of Mr. Hughes, Admiral Baron Kato and Mr. Balfour, in an endeavor to reconcile divergency between Japan and America regarding naval ratio. At present each side seems inclined to insist on the reasonableness of its own point of view and Mr. Balfour's role will probably be that of mediator.

The naval experts who have been engaged for ten days in connection with the details and figures will report to the Committee of Three.

The latter will then endeavor to find a commonly acceptable solution. If Japan still presses her contention it is uncertain what will happen but it is suggested that it is more likely that the whole question of naval ratio will be referred to the five powers.

HUGHES AIDS BRIAND

(Trans-Pacific Public Ledger—China Press Exclusive Service)

Washington, Dec. 1—The date of the closing of foreign post offices in China is up to the Japanese delegation which is awaiting instructions from Tokio, but the date will be definitely fixed within the next few days and will probably be made effective within a year.

In the meanwhile, arrangements are being made for foreign inspection of the mails in foreign post offices by customs officials.

The report that Briand had made insulting statements against Italy, which caused hostile impressions and riots in Italy was officially denied by Secretary of State Hughes today.

The French are bitterly opposed to extending an invitation to Germany to attend the conference, for which reason Viviani is planning to return home in a fortnight. French journalists are already leaving Washington.

Viviani takes the stand that there is no necessity for extending an invitation to Germany since the latter nation is concerned in neither naval reductions nor Far Eastern problems. On the other hand, he points out, if economic questions are to be discussed, France is already dealing directly with Germany. He intimates, however, that France will not refuse to participate in a conference including Germany.

Sentiment is growing for the calling of another conference at the conclusion of the present sessions to complete the work started here and also to consider European questions. There is an unmistakable desire on the part of various foreign delegations to quit before Christmas. London reports of an impending break in the Irish conference make the arrival of Lloyd George doubtful. Sir James Craig's statement to the Ulster parliament may be the signal for the various sides to publicly state their views and appeal for the support of their respective publics.

LEGATES REPLY

(Special To The China Press)

Hankow, Nov. 28.—A cablegram was received in Hankow this morning from Washington in which Messrs. Alfred Sze, Wellington Koo, and Wang Chung-hui, gave the following reply to a cablegram despatched on November 24 by the Hankow Association of All Unions:

"Hankow Association of All-Unions, Hankow;

"We assure you delegation doing utmost get removed all limitation of our sovereignty so that China may hereafter freely develop herself without fear foreign aggression and without restraint on automomous powers. Sze Koo Wang."

In the original letter addressed to the Chinese delegation at Washington, the Hankow Association of All Unions made an urgent appeal to the Chinese delegates and Messrs. Sze, Koo and Wang, that they firmly maintain China's stand at the Conference table, and not yield under any circumstances.

KATO IS WORRIED

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Dec. 1.—Admiral Baron Kato today declined to say whether his views on the question of naval disarmaments coincided with those of other members of the Japanese delegation.

"I am not losing sleep over the matter," he said in the course of an interview, "but I am somewhat worried because the issues are of such vital importance."

One of the other delegates said that to give Japan less than a 70 percent ratio in naval power as compared with the United States and Great Britain was to place her at the mercy of the great powers.

The Japanese are firm in insisting on the 70 percent basis. Great Britain and America, on the other hand, agree that even 60 percent is too high a rating for Japan. Both of the nations agree that the "5-3-5" plan is the only fair agreement and regard the Japanese claim as striking at the fundamentals of the American proposal.

The Americans conferred today for three hours.

CHINA WILL PARLEY

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Dec. 1.—Dr. Wang Chung-hui of the Chinese delegation said today that China could not abandon and unconditionally surrender Shantung, but is willing to discuss reasonable means of settlement with Japan.

U. S. IS FIRM

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Dec. 1—The proportion for large fighting units in the various navies seems practically definitely settled.

The American delegation, to whose remarkable harmony and discipline the correspondent of the Temps pays a tribute, are standing by the figures fixed at the beginning of the Conference and which for Britain, the United States and Japan are expressed by the proportion of five-five-three.

Japan was claiming supplementary tonnage but the statements of Admiral Baron Kato who was maintaining that point of view, have been disavowed by the President of the delegation, who declared that he was merely a counsellor to the delegation and the question had now been taken from the hands of the experts and entrusted to the politicians.

France, after having claimed her right to the same tonnage as Japan, namely, 300,000 tons as against 500,000 granted to Britain and the United States, will probably end by agreeing to a tonnage of 200,000, equal to that of Italy. The question of submarine tonnage remains to be settled.

Mr. Balfour, chief of the British delegation having to go to New York, where he will make speeches, the next plenary session of the Conference has been postponed until Wednesday.

The correspondent of the London Times considers that it will not be less big with events than the first meeting of the Far Eastern Committee.

The Agenda of the Far Eastern Committee falls under three heads, China, Siberia and the Pacific Islands under mandate. The questions under the headings of China and Siberia can be divided into several sections and the Committee is not yet at the end of the Chinese questions, which are bristling with difficulties.

The question of foreign troops in China has just been examined.

Japan, who has four battalions in Shantung and a division in Manchuria, says that she is ready to withdraw them, with the exception of those in Manchuria where the necessity of preserving order obliges her to maintain troops.

As to the thorny problem of Shantung, China and Japan, it is believed, will leave it to Great Britain and the United States to decide for them, fearing that, if they raised it publicly, they would embarass the Powers signatory to the Treaty of Versailles and affiliated in the League of Nations.

Within a short time, the Washington correspondent of the Times writes under date November 29, "the greatest difficulties will be far behind us."

The Times of November 30 says that no one in well-informed circles would be surprised to learn one fine day that even the imbroglio over the Anglo-Japanese Alliance had been cleared up in a very reasonable manner.

The Daily Telegraph emphasises the necessity for the abandonment by the United States of its traditional policy of detachment and isolation and a more intimate agreement between Britain and the United States on world policy.

MUTSU IN COMMISSION

(Trans-Pacific Public Ledger—China Press Exclusive Service)

Tokio, Nov. 30.—The much discussed battleship Mutsu is to be placed in full commission on December 1 and has been ordered to join the First Fleet. Japanese naval authorities are still united in declaring that the Mutsu must not be scrapped.

Germans Will Pay Reparation In Tar

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Nov. 30.—The Agence Havas learns that scepticism prevails in German financial circles on the subject of the moratorium, favored by Britain, and on the possible results of Dr. Rathenau's visit to London.

It is believed, moreover, that, while Herr Stinnes may perhaps have succeeded in obtaining something in his private interests in London, he has failed as far as reparations are concerned, which seem to have held a secondary place in his consideration.

The reparations commission has approved a plan for the delivery of tar and tar products to France by Germany.

THE FIFTH WISE MAN

"I'll wait a while before buying my life insurance," said the first wise man. He had to pay 15 per cent more because the cost had increased.

"Next year will be just as good," said the second wise man. He died six months later.

"I'm in no hurry—I can get insurance any time," said the third wise man. He discovered his error later, when the doctor told him he was uninsurable.

"I'll have more money for insurance in a couple of years," said the fourth wise man. But a reckless chauffeur ran over him, and the day when he can buy insurance has passed.

Now there was a FIFTH man and he bought his Life Insurance from the Asia Life Insurance Company when he had the chance. He isn't worrying any. Neither is his family.

TURK PACT MAY BRING PARLEY OF 3 COUNTRIES

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Dec. 1.—It is semi-officially stated that in the course of a conversation with the French Ambassador, Count de Saint Aulaire, Lord Curzon suggested the general settlement of the Eastern question by means of a small preliminary conference, consisting of the Italian Ambassador in Paris, M. Briand and Lord Curzon, which should be followed by a full meeting of the Supreme Council to decide a comprehensive solution, especially of the question of mediation in the Turco-Greek conflict.

Chinese Students Back From France Are In Straits Here

The 104 Chinese students recently brought back from France owing to inability of the government to furnish their expenses have held several meetings to discuss ways and means of supporting themselves and continuing their studies.

At a meeting held in the Ling Nan Lua restaurant on Foochow Road one Ling Zang-ming offered to try and establish the students, temporarily at least, in the Chinese Public School at Woosung. The negotiations, however, were unsuccessful, the school stating its ability to care for only a few of the students. A deputation also called upon the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, who informed them that he could only lend them support temporarily and urged that they make an effort to return to their native places.

The students are scattered about at various lodging houses and some are said to be ill as a result of the trip from France. Another meeting is to be held today.

Money Lending Suit Hangs On Prints

Decision in a money lending case which came up before Judge Peter Grain in the British Supreme Court yesterday rests on a question of thumb prints. Dan Singh is suing Ahmed Ali, watchman, on the claim that he lent the latter $50 August 8 on a note of hand calling for $2 interest per month. On October 10, he says, he received $1. Ahmed denied borrowing the money, repudiated the note and declared that a thumb print thereto attached as signature is not his own. The thumb impression of Ahmed and that on the note were ordered sent to the police for examination and the case was adjourned until today.

RAILWAYS READY TO QUIT HELPING FOREIGN VESSELS

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Dec. 1.—Representatives of the Pennsylvania Railway and nine other companies appeared today before the committee of the shipping board to consider the question of the abrogation of railroad contracts with foreign steamship lines, in view of the shipping board's declaration that such contracts menaced the success of the American Merchant Marine. It was stated on behalf of the railroads that the contracts in point were practically inoperative.

Children Die When Ry. Train Hits Bus

(Reuter's Service)

Red Bluffs, Ark., Nov. 30.—A St. Louis and Iron Mountain train yesterday struck a school bus carrying 16 children en route to school. Twelve were killed and the remaining four injured and are not expected to live. The driver is reported to have said that a fog obscured his view when he approached the track.

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Nov. 30.—The police estimate that 25 workmen were killed in the collapse of a theater, and at least six wounded. The search of the debris will take several weeks.

Warwick Matinee Today

The Warwick Comedy Company, which has been appearing during the week at the Lyceum to big houses announce a matinee today at 3:30 in addition to the evening show at 9:15. "The Double Event," described as a sporting comely, will be staged on both occasions and will be repeated again on Monday and Tuesday. The principal parts are in the hands of Miss Joan Mayne, Mr. N. Thorpe Mayne and Mr. Tom Fenwick, and the show seems to have made a big appeal whatever it has been played. The idea of a lady entering into the cookmaking business and accepting bets from her father, a clergyman, is bound to lead to humorous situation and the piece promises to be one of the biggest laughing successes in the repertoire. Plans are at Moutrie's.

Procelain Invented To Save Heads Of Husbands

pings of homicidic memory, which reminds us that when we first heard of "Taipings" we thought that they were the same things as "Taipans" and therefore concluded that the rebellion was a by-product of the longest bar in the world.

To list all the types of Chinese porcelains would require a full file of the Congressional Record. There was the white Ting porcelain of the eleventh century, the famous ox-blood porcelain of the K'ang Hsi Period, which was perfected in only one attempt out of a thousand, the rice pattern stamp, which meant the cutting away of pieces about the size of rice grains and the insertion of glaze so as to give a transparency, the crackle porcelain, in which tiny cracks were produced by a sudden change in temperature, and the celadon type of single color glazes, perfected in thirty-four different tints.

RADICALS WIN POINT

Before the industry was many centuries old, there was a split between the conservative artists, who believed that the only objects worth portraying were canned peaches, pine-trees, asparagus tips, and other studies from still-life, and the radicals, who favored historical scenes and personalities with pep. The radicals finally won their point, and porcelain promptly blossomed out in a whole children's playground of celebrities.

Chief among the personalities on the vases are the eight fairies who were born human beings but who later attained immortality—not immorality, as the Young Lady Across the Way might remark. One of them was a daughter of the Canton hills who obtained an indefinite renewal on her subscription to life by merely eating powdered mother-of-pearl. Another was a famous student of the classics. He was known chiefly as the owner of white mule which carried him incredible distances, and which could be folded up when not in use and tucked away in a suitcase. It is a pity that the collapsible rule is not still extant, for it would have created a considerable sensation at the Automobile Show.

Burnt likewise into Chinese porcelain are the twenty-four examples of filial piety. Included in this glazy are Kao Lai-tsze, who at the age of seventy dressed in gay clothes and played on the floor like a child to amuse his parents; and a boy whose stepmother wanted fresh fish in winter. In order to oblige her he sat on a block of ice until it melted and two carp rose to the surface.

About the only designs one doesn't find on porcelain in China are those sold as Chinese in Europe and the United States.

FOREIGN WOMEN ROBBERY VICTIMS

Two instances of foreign women being robbed by Chinese, armed in one case, were reported to the police Thursday night.

The report of the armed robbery was made shortly after midnight yesterday morning by Mrs. Remedios, 131 North Szechuen Road. She stated that she had been asleep and wakened to find two Chinese in the room. They held something in their hands which resembled long knives and threatened to kill her if she did not hand over her keys. When she had done so they opened a chest of drawers and took about $100 in notes, after which they switched off the lights and left the house. Investigation showed a window on the front verandah and the front door to be open.

The other robbery was reported by Mrs. Filburn, residing at the Savoy Hotel, who told the police that while she was walking along Boone Road near the Broadway a Chinese rushed out of an alleyway and snatched her handbag, containing $40, a small purse and some keys. She said that she struggled with the man and he pushed her to the ground. Her shouts brought a Sikh policeman to the scene but the robber escaped.

Don't Make Us A Lifebuoy For Indies 'Shell' Asks Dutch

(Reuter's Service)

Amsterdam, Dec. 1.—Sir J. Deterding in a speech at an extraordinary meeting of the Royal Dutch Company said that if only the smallest part of the Government policy in regard to taxation and the export duty in the Dutch Indies were executed, the Board would deem the credit basis withdrawn from the Company. No public issue would be possible therefore, he added, and no cash dividends would be paid.

The Royal Shell Combine of 1920 had made two hundred million guilders profit, but the larger part of this sum was not from the Indies and was more profit from transport, distribution and selling than from production. The Company was not opposed to a profit tax on real profit obtained in the Indies even if it were a high tax, but it most earnestly protested against being made a lifebuoy for the exhausted exchequer of the Indies.

Harriers Train With Two Squads In Country Jaunt

Two squads of Shanghai Harriers Club members will go on cross-country jaunts through the Kiangwan district this afternoon, starting from the American School at 3 o'clock.

There will be fast and slow packs and the men will run about four miles and a half.

Cabinet Will Have Many Shifts Soon

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Nov. 28.—Speculation is rife in Chinese circles with regard to the positions in the various ministries that are in danger of being left vacant by the resignation of the present holders.

It is learned, according to the Chinese comments, that Mr. Tung Kwang, the Minister of Justice, will be appointed the Chief of the Law Codification Commission, the vacancy in the Ministry of Justice being filled by Dr. Wang Chung-hui, one of the delegates to the Washington Conference. Until Dr. Wang's return from the West the present Vice-Minister will act for him.

Mr. Ma Ling-yi, who has been having a desperate time over the fierce letters of the employes of his department, who threaten to write more if they are not paid, is working hard to get the job as Civil Governor of his native province of Kansu, say the reports, and it is suggested that the present occupant of that post be transferred to Peking, to take the job that is now held by Mr. Ma, it being felt that these two posts are enough alike to permit a system of exchange.

TO PROBE MORSE'S ACTS

(U. S. Navy Radio Through Reuter)

Washington, Nov. 30.—The Government is preparing to lay before the Federal Grand Jury in December the results of its investigation in connection with certain transactions between Mr. Charles W. Morse and the Shipping Board.

A perfect Paint of smooth surface for Interior Wall Coating

The surface obtainable with this paint is smooth and flat, i.e., it is not a grainy, dead, lifeless finish, but of a velvety texture. It dries in a reasonably quick time, so that work can be carried out effectively, yet has the property of remaining open long enough to enable the worker to cover a large surface of wall without making laps or edges.

Excellent results with Super Durable Flat Finish are easily obtained, irrespective of the skill of the user, and an elaborate preparation of the surface is usually quite unnecessary.

Super Durable Flat Finish has been tried on non-absorbent surfaces of all kinds and where distemper and oil paint have proved prone to shell or flake off, it has always adhered. It gives a lasting finish of surprising beauty.

1 Imperial Gallon covers about 130 square yards one coat.

Provincial Meet At Foochow Has 44 Schools Out

(China Press Correspondence)

Foochow, Nov. 30.—The Provincial Athletic Meet has been a great success. Forty-four different schools were represented which furnished 524 contestants. All of the games usually played in such a meet were presented for six days. The grounds were crowded with students, their friends, and people of all professions, classes and ages.

It was not a walk away for the Mission Schools as formerly in the matter of prizes, because the government schools students were successful in many of the contests. As the schools are not generally known to the reading public outside of Foochow it is hardly necessary to speak of the successes of the various institutions, but all did remarkably well. Hundreds of prizes were awarded to those who were victorious.

The first school honor was awarded to the Government Men's Normal School of Foochow, and the second fell to Tan Ka Kee's Projected University in Amoy. Of the individual honors the first went to a student of the Government Men's Normal School of Foochow, the second to a student of Tan Ka Kee's University in Amoy and the third to a student of the Government Foreign Language College in Foochow.

One of the most striking features of the occasion was the appearance of the students of eight girls' schools, dressed in very neat uniforms, in gymnastic drills under their Chinese directors. Another notable feature was the appearance of hundreds of primary boys from government schools in their athletic drills under their own Chinese supervisors.

B. I. RESERVES SHOOT TOMORROW FOR LADIES' PRIZE

The Ladies' prize competition of the British Infantry reserves, will be held tomorrow on the Rifle Range in conjunction with the unit's annual rifle meeting. Ranges of 200, 300 and 400 yards, 1 sighter and 15 scoring shots at each distance will govern the morning shooting commencing at 8:30 o'clock, while the afternoon competitions, commencing at 2 will be at 200, 500 and 600 yards, 1 sighter and 7 scoring shots.

Forty six competitors are entered in the ladies competition. The first 42 will shoot for two ladies, totalling 84. The drawing was held yesterday and resulted as follows:

Rowing Club's Two Teams Win In Basketball Games

Strokeside Beat A. M. Co. 40-4; Bowside Win Over S'hai College 41--30

The two Rowing Club basketball teams in the Foreign League walked off with their opening games last night on their own home floor. The Strokeside five won over the Anderson Meyer team 40-4 in the first game and the Bowside won over the Shanghai College in the second match by 41-30.

The first game was a walkaway for the oarsmen. Neprude led his crew mates in an attack that swamped the Hong players. It was a clear case of one team so far outclassing the other as to keep the game interesting just to see how high the score would run up.

The Bowside in their match with the College while they were never in danger, had to play basketball every minute to maintain their lead. Kay and Gatrell who alternated at center and guard did most of the point getting for the club, the former by his strong tactics and sharp shooting, and the latter by clean and clever basketball. For the College Anderson, Hipps and Kelhofer starred.

The next games scheduled in the Foreign League are for Monday at the Rowing Club, between the Public School and the Strokeside at 5:30 p.m., and the "Y" team and the Anderson Meyer five at 6:30.

Yesterday's scores follow:

Strokeside 40: Johnson lf, Nash rf, Neprude c, Goldman lg, Campbell rg.

A. M. Co. 4: Wythe lf, Dawson rf, Phillips c, Armstrong lg, Morrison, Doughty rg.

Referee: Gatrell.

Bowside 41: Bell lf, Evans rf, Kay c, Gatrell lg, Atkinson rg.

S'hai College 30: Djing lf, Hipps rf, Anderson c, Kelhofer lg, Howells, Kulp rg.

Goals from floor: Kay 10, Gatrell 6, Bell 4; Anderson 6, Hipps 3, King 2, Kulp 2, Kelhofer 2.

Goals from fouls: Kay 1, Kelhofer 2.

Time: Two 20-min. periods.

Referee: Squires.

Interesting Papers Read Before Literary Section Of American Woman's Club

Two papers of more than ordinary interest were given at yesterday's meeting of the Literary Section of the American Woman's Club and at the same meeting a report was presented on the progress being made with the publication shortly to be brought out which gives in printed form all the valuable papers and addresses that were given in the course of last year.

The publication is to bear the title of "Art and Art Crafts of Ancient China" and the edition being published is to be limited to 300 volumes, half of which already have been subscribed for, as orders already have been received from as far South as Manila besides from many centers in China remote from Shanghai.

Concerning the forthcoming publication Mrs. Van Buskirk said yesterday that proofs on the final pages are being read and that sample sheets that have been prepared are altogether attractive and artistic in appearance. The publication, which is attractively illustrated, includes three papers on great periods of Chinese paintings, five papers on Chinese architecture, eight papers on art crafts, including rug making and porcelains, five papers on Emperors notable as promoters of art, Mr. Klien's story and Mrs. Wilbur's article on the 18 private collections of art objects in Shanghai and vicinity.

The price of the publication has not yet been announced as its cost has not yet been fixed but it will be between $2 and $3 and subscriptions may be addressed to Mrs. H. A. Wilbur, 124 Dixwell Road, Mrs. F. W. Van Buskirk, 60 Kinnear Road or to Mrs. W. F. Beaman, 120 Dixwell Road.

MRS. BEAMAN'S PAPER

The paper that was given at yesterday's meeting by Mrs. Beaman was upon the subject of "The Collection and Preservation of Chinese Historical Records." The speaker explained that while something is known of Chinese history of the past 4,000 years this does not mean that any continuous record has been kept through this long period.

Mrs. Beaman said that the long record of events in China's history has been preserved in annals and writings of scholars and these have been put into a continuous record by modern-day students. She said the first effort to collect the country's historical records was made in the time of Confucius in what is known as "The Book of History," commonly ascribed to Confucius.

This book begins with the reign of Yao and Shun and covers the period from their time to that of Confucius.

After the days of Confucius, a ruler named Shih Hwang-ti came to the throne who became jealous of the comparisons made between his deeds and those of the illustrious rulers of the Chou dynasty and the order was given to destroy all the old records. Many of the records were treasured, however, and were successfully hidden so that we have those devotees to thank for the existence of the great work today.

Mrs. Beaman then spoke of the "Bamboo Books" which, she said, is a name given to a large collection of ancient documents discovered in 279 A. D. embracing 20 different works which contain 70 or 80 chapters of books.

It was in the early Han days she said that the art of writing history was created by Si Ma Ch'ien who is called the Herodotus of China.

The second paper of the afternoon was given by Miss Katherine Groesbeck, a member of the senior class of the American School, on the subject of "The Glorious Yu and His Dynasty." This was prepared at short notice by Miss Groesbeck to fill a place in the program. The paper is of particular interest and is given in part as follows:

MISS GROESBECK'S PAPER

"Ere Rome was founded, or Troy was taken, before Thebes or Ninweh were erected into kingdoms, China was a settled state, under a regular form of government, with customs and institutions similar in many respects to those which she possesses now. While nations in Western Asia were just beginning their civilisation, China was passing through one of the most illustrious periods of her entire history—the glorious reign of Yu.

Yu was the founder of China's first dynasty, the Hsia which extended over a period of four hundred years. Where he was born nobody knows, some say Szechuen. Yu was ninety-three years of age when he ascended the Imperial throne, nevertheless he was a man of great energy and ability. His chief aim was to live close to his people. To further this end five instruments were hung outside the palace gate—a drum, a gong, a bell, a triangle and a rattle. If any one wished to speak of virtues which should grace a sovereign he had but to strike the drum and an audience was at once granted. If any one thought the emperor's mode of living was not just what it should be, he had but to strike the gong and he would be admitted. If any one bore news of a famine or rebellion he rang the bell and was immediately received into the presence of the emperor. If any one had been wronged he had only to strike the triangle and his case would be heard. If anyone desired justice he came and shook the rattle and opportunity was given him to speak.

Draining the country after the Yellow River flood was one of the most difficult problems with which Yu had to cope. It is said that he examined the lines on a turtle's back and perceiving there were nine squares was seized with the inspiration to divide the country into nine provinces and drain them by degrees.

He made a study of these nine provinces which is told in a most interesting manner in the Shuking, the ancient classic book of Chinese history. The following is taken from the Shuking modified and condensed:

The first province visited was Kechow. Here Yu confined the rivers Hang and Wu to their proper channels and set a tribute to be paid in skins. He then proceeded to Yenchow when he conducted the nine branches of the Ho into their right courses and made fit the mulberry grounds for silkworms. Articles of tribute here were to be varnish and silks.

His next place of visit was Tsingchow, a rich province. Here he taught wild tribes tillage and pasturage and set as tribute salt, fine grass cloth, silk, hemp, lead and pine trees.

He is next found regulating the rivers of Tsunchow and bringing the hills under cultivation. Here tribute was to be paid in earth of fine colors, pheasant feathers, sounding stones, pearls, silk and fish. He went from here to Yangchow confining lake Pingle to its proper limits and draining the marsh of Chun. Tribute was to be paid here in gold, silver, copper, bamboos, elephants teeth, hides, feathers, hair and timber. The wild people brought garments of grass. Then he visited Kingchow, regulating streams and draining marshes setting as tribute feathers, hair, ivory, hides, gold, silver, copper, cedars, cypress, whitstones, arrowheads of stone, cinnabar and the great tortoise. Then he pursued his course to Yuchow with its rich fields exacting as tribute varnish, hemp, hempen cloth and silk.

In Leangchow the fields were poor but he cultivated the hills and led the rivers into their proper courses. As tribute he required gems, iron, silver, steel, stones for arrow heads, skins of bears, great bears, foxes and jackals, also articles woven with their hair. Lastly he visited Yungchow uniting the rivers of King and Wei, draining the marshes and worshiping the lofty mountains. Here tribute was to be paid in precious stones, hair cloth and skin.

No other emperor did more for China. Yu surveyed all mountains, studying how to make them useful, fixing boundaries, making lands habitable, clearing sources of streams, adjusting revenues according to the resources of the district and classifying fields with reference to the character of the soil. Upon his return he had maps constructed and engraved on bronze tripods.

Yu also instituted another political and territorial division of the country. The land was divided into five concentric squares, each extending five hundred lis in every direction. The first square was called the Imperial domain. In it was the capital. The second was called the Domain of Nobles which was occupied by the ministers and officers of the empire. The third was the Peace Securing Domain, three hundred lis of this domain being set apart for the pursuit of knowledge and moral duties. The other two hundred lis were occupied by warriors. Fourth was the Domain of Restraint which was inhabited by the tribes of E and those undergoing lesser banishment. Lastly was the Wild Domain occupied by wild tribes and criminals undergoing greater banishment.

Gold and silver were first minted during this period. Then also lived the astronomers Hi and Ho whose duty it was to study the heavens and predict eclipses. Failure to predict an eclipse or to predict it too early or too late was a capital offense.

Yu died at the age of one hundred after a glorious reign of seven years. His death is said to have accrued while on an expedition in South China. His tomb is thought to be at Shaoshing where he is worshiped and there is a temple erected in his honor. A Chinese saying runs "How grand was the achievement of Yu! How far reaching his glorious energy! But for Yu we should all have been fishes."

Two Rugby Games Scheduled For Today

Two practice rugby matches are scheduled for this afternoon on the Shanghai Rugby Football Club field, the first between Mr. Jenkinson's XV and Mr. Sparke's team commencing at 2:15 o'clock, and the second between the Club and the Shanghai Scottish XV at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Jenkinson's team will play in white and their opponents in colors.

The Club will play in black jerseys and white shirts. The Shanghai Scottish in all white.

Players are requested to be on the ground promptly to kick off on time.

Am'n Football Squad Practices This Afternoon

The American football squads, both light and heavy will have its last workout today at 3 p.m. on the North end of the Polo field, before the Navy game which is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon on the Cricket Club field commencing at 3 o'clock.

All players are urged to come out, as Herby Gallop wishes to keep both elevens in trim in anticipation of games with light and heavy Navy teams, the American School, and the Tientsin 15th Infantry eleven at holiday time.

PEKING MARINES DRILL FOR RETURN GAME WITH 15TH

Daily practice is being held by the Peking marine football team in preparation for the second game of the interport series with the 15th infantry, stationed at Tientsin, which is to played on the Polo Field, Peking, on Sunday. The Peking team, which was defeated on Thanksgiving day by the score of 19 to 7, is holding its workouts behind closed doors and its coaches are making every effort to get the eleven into shape for Sunday's game.

The coaching of the team is being handled by Captain Tenney of the American legation and by T. C. Penney and T. C. Speers, both of whom had football experience at Princeton. From all indications the marine players will be able to put up a much better game than they did in their last showing and while the coaches are not unduly optimistic they hope that there will be a reversal of form which will give the return game to Peking and even the series.

The faults and mistakes brought to light on Thanksgiving Day are being gone over and the team is being drilled in those departments of the game in which it proved to be weak against the 15th infantry. The ends particularly are expected to show up better in the next game.

Captain Nelms, who proved himself to be the star of last week's game, is still doing very well and is the backbone of the team's offence. Albee and Hilibrand are also showing up well in the backfield. With true professionalism, spies from each team have endeavored to watch their opponents' practice but closed gates have kept the work of the marine team secret.

Capt. Barrett And Mansel-Smith Win S.C.C. Doubles Title

The Shanghai Cricket Club Doubles Championship was won Thursday in three straight sets 6-4, 6-2 and 6-4 by Capt. E.I.M. Barrett and W. Mansel-Smith over the two brothers, L. and A. Wheen.

Although the two brothers were playing to advantage at the early part of the game, Captain Barrett and Mansel-Smith immediately found themselves and a series of clever games and well-placed shots volleyed with the result that the game was won.

BRITISH FORCE OVERWHELMED IN AFGHAN RAID

(Reuter's Service)

Delhi, Dec. 1.—A serious frontier affray occurred near Wishin, where a force of Waziris from Afghanistan overwhelmed a small British Column of two British officers and 82 Indians.

Both officers were killed and many of the rank and file were killed or wounded and 25 were taken prisoners after a fight lasting 4½ hours.

Sir Henry Dobbs has strongly protested to the Afghan Government and the Amir has replied expressing his very great regret.

London, Dec. 1.—Reuter's agency learns that no doubt is entertained in well-informed quarters that the objective of the Waziri raid was the town of Quetta.

The fact that the raid started from the center at least 80 miles inside Afghan territory is regarded as significant.

Nevertheless it is not thought that the Amir of the Afghan Government is responsible, and there is therefore no reason why this incident should affect the friendly relations with Afghanistan.

Sir Henry Dobbs is still at Kabul.

Crown Agents Are Named For Colonies

(Reuter's Service)

London, Dec. 1.—Sir Henry Lambert has been appointed senior Crown Agent for the Colonies in succession to Sir William Mercer, retired. Mr. C. T. Davis has been appointed Assistant Under-Secretary for the Colonies in succession to Sir Henry Lambert. Lieut.-Colonel J. F. Carmichael, Chief Engineer to the Crown Agents Office, has been appointed additional Crown Agent.

Chita Submits Counter Charges

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 29.—According to despatches received in Peking the Dairen Conference has again been in session since Sunday and has considered the desirability of entering upon a discussion of the Nikolaievsk incident of last year. The Chita delegates are understood to have submitted their reply to the Japanese counter-proposals regarding a trade agreement, and the discussions are continuing.

Planes Collide In Air; 4 Are Dead

(Special To The China Press)

Lawton, Okla., Dec. 1.—Captain Loomis, Lieutenant Attanfall and Privates Tubbard and B. A. Smith were killed today when two airplanes collided in mid-air and fell to the ground.

TROOPSHIPS MAY BE GIVEN OVER TO PRIVATE CO.

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Dec. 1—It was officially announced that the Shipping Board may take over the army transport service on the Pacific.

As an experiment, Chairman Albert D. Lasker has requested Secretary of War Weeks that the board be permitted to operate the transports in connection with the weekly service, which, it is expected, will begin soon between the Pacific coast and the Philippines and Far East.

Vessels would be operated by a private company, believed to be the Pacific Mail, and the Shipping Board.

Chairman Lasker believes that the new service will need government patronage. Secretary of War Weeks is considering the matter and said that he may turn over the transport service to one of the companies as an experiment.

Must Cut Army Asserts Peking In Spasm Of Reform

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 29.—The Government is stated to have telegraphed to the various provincial authorities, calling their attention to the effect of the financial situation in China upon China's status among the nations. It expresses a desire to consult the provinces regarding reorganisation of the national finances and advances the opinion that the disbandment of superfluous troops is essential to the needed reform.

FILIPINOS WANT TO HOLD POWER OVER OFFICIALS

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Dec. 1.—Jaime De Veyra and Isadore Gabaldon, resident commissioners for the Philippines at Washington, today issued a statement in which they declared that the Wood-Forbes recommendations have the tendency of practically nullifying the power of the Philippine Senate in case of a disagreement with the Governor-General.

"To a subject people like us," they said, "the power of the Senate to confirm or not confirm appointments is the bulwark aganist possible tyranny on the part of the Governor-General. Under the circumstances, therefore, we cannot surrender that power."

The commissioners recognised in their report that the intentions of the officials were lofty and with profound sympathy for the people of the Philippines, but they refused to accept their conclusion because of the "contrary ideals and aspirations of the Philippine people."

DEBTS ARE RUSS GOAL

Paris, Dec. 1.—It is reported that MM. Krassin and Litvinoff will go to Washington to attempt to interest the United States in the question of the Russian pre-war debts.

Nantao Merchants Take Stand Against Famine Surtaxes

The merchants of Nantao have taken a decided stand against the extension of the famine surtax.

Learning that the railway, postal and Customs authorities have refused to recognise the extension of the tax, says the Chinese press, the merchants met and decided to reject it also. In order to make their stand felt they have, since December 1, stopped transportation of goods and will await further developments in the matter.

Press Report Is Lisbon's Target

(Reuter's Service)

London, Dec. 1.—The alarming reports regarding Portugal cabled yesterday, have evoked a spirited protest from the Portuguese Legation in London, which attacks the press correspondent, denounces his statements and ridicules the assertion that the Premier was forced to accept office under the alternative of being sent to Africa. The Legation most emphatically denies that foreign intervention is contemplated, and repels the contention of the existence of motives justifying it.

World's Justice To Be Served By Eleven Justices

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Dec. 1.—The Secretariat of the League of Nations will call 11 Judges to the session of the Permanent International Court of Justice at the Hague on January 30 next. The Temps understands that the ceremonial opening will take place at the beginning of February.

Lunghai Railway Strike Is Ended

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 29.—M. A. Disiere, General Agent for China of the Banque Belge pour L'Etranger, has received a telegram from the Director of the Lunghai Railway stating that the strike on that line ended on Sunday morning and traffic was immediately resumed.

GO TO MANCHULI

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 29.—Messrs. Hsu Tung-hsin and Hsueh Yung, the translators despatched by the Waichiaopu to the Sino-Russian Conference at Manchuli, have reached Harbin, in company with Mr. Li Ching-shan, the delegate from the Ministry of Communications. It is being strongly urged in some quarters that Dr. C. C. Wang should be appointed Chief of the delegation with regard to railway matters.

DOINGS AT THE DEL MONTÉ
AS a special "After the Auto Show" attraction we've just engaged a merry duo to do new songs and dances for your entertainment. You'll like them—they've got wings on their feet and they can sing like canaries.
AND then of course there's popular Harry Dudley with all his songs to sing, and Bill Powers, at his new piano, just makes your feet tingle for a dance.
AND ham and eggs—that's part of the program. Judging by the demand, dancing and motoring in the chill hours aoes make 'em hungry, we'll say. That Australian ham that we are using is the best ever came to Shanghai.

Rabbi Hirsch Delivers Talk On Jews In Arabia

Rabbi W. Hirsch delivered a lecture on "The Jews in Arabia" before the Shanghai Jewish Literary Circle Wednesday evening, the following being his address in part:

"Arabia was well described as a land of dreams and visions. Every nation had tales and legends, its myths and mysteries to embellish its birth and origin. But nowhere else was poetic fancy and rapid imagination so hard at work as among the Arabs. Surrounded by the howling mysteries of the desert, and cut off by an almost encompassing sea from the ancient centers of civilisation, the peculiarly susceptible mind of the Arab wrought in curious fancy the boundless extravagance of his poetical imagination. The very air he breathed was full of fluttering angels and whispering spirits which communed with him concerning the riddles of nature and the puzzles of the past. While other nations grew from infancy into manhood, and then passed on the decline of old age, the Arab remained a grown up child for thousands of years, scowering the wilds of the desert or basking in the luxuriance of the oases in boundless freedom and unsubdued courage.

"Transferred into such a slumbering atmosphere, the Jews soon became true sons of their adopted country. Like the Arabs, they revelled in the quaint and fantastic. Apart from the rich poetry in which they gave expression to the most delicate movements of the soul, they embellished their religious stories as well as the story of their own past with many tales and fanciful legends that might be prized highly by the poet for their fine conception and exquisite imagination. But to the historian they present a maze of embarrassing confusion. In his search for historical truth he often has to chase the will-o'-the wisp of poetical illusion; of the apparent light that meets the eye there remains sometimes no more than a tantalising uncertainty.

LEGENDS ARE MANY

"When and whence did the Jews come to Arabia? Legend speculates here with all its extravagance. It is said that Joshua once sent an army to fight with Amalek. When the soldiers came to the town of Medina, and the fertile district of Khaibar on the north, they were so fascinated with the fertility and beauty of the land that they gave up their warlike enterprise and settled down to try what peace could offer. Another report tells the same story but makes its heroes the soldiers of King Saul not of Joshua, while a third, with somewhat greater modesty is content to date the foundation of the first Jewish colony in Arabia from the first captivity.

"All these are legends and contain no more than the record of popular imagination. If they indicate anything at all, it is the influence of the Arabs who were fond of seeking importance for their race in tracing its descent to a remote beginning. And the Jews, whose hoary past was by no means an idle boast, profited by this example and shared the pride of their antiquity with the land of their adoption.

"It is true that Arabia as a land was known to the Israelites in the earliest days of history. It is suggested that the southern coasts of Arabia were regularly visited by the adventurous fleet of King Solomon, and the Bible also related of a cordial relationship between that proud monarch and the queen of the Sabeans, a people who lived in the south of Arabia. In the prophetical books of the Bible too Arabia and its inhabitants the Arabs are frequently mentioned. But these references are vague and scanty.

"What were the relations between Palestine and Arabia, what were the political and social connections between the Jews and the Arabs? The Bible has little information to give us on this subject, and post Biblical literature is equally reserved. The Mishna, the Midrash as well as the Talmud all retain a uniform silence concerning Arabia and the Arabian Jews. Some modern minds, with their penetrating sagacity have developed (some) curious theories in which they tried to prove that almost all the early history of the Jews was spun out in northern Arabia. But these theories we can at the moment set aside. For the Jews we first meet in Arabia were not the singers of the Psalms. They belonged to a much later period, when the poetry of the Bible wrapped itself in the more fantastic robe of the Midrash and the Agada.

PIONEERS WERE PATRIOTS

"In view of this fact, and in the absence of adequate information it is not a mere adventure if with many historians we assume that the first Jews to settle in Arabia were the noble patriots who time after time tried to free their country from the galling yoke of the Romans. When all attempts failed, and Palestine had no more freedom to offer, they bade farewell to their homes for ever, and marched southward till they found a resting place in the semi-populated Arabian peninsula.

"When the history of Arabia begins to unfold itself, and this is as late as the 7th century C.E. we find a large number of Jews settled in central and northern Arabia. In their social and political organisation in their manner of living, and in their relations towards the Arabs, there is everything to suggest a gradual development of a long and unperturbed settlement in the land in which we find them.

"Our history is rich in illustrations of the peculiar genius of our race for adaptation and assimilation. Placed under conditions of life that no other nation survived, our people would have been extinct long ago if not for their ability to accommodate themselves to their position, and while retaining their individuality absorb of their surroundings all that might give them vitality and strength. But we have few examples where Jews have so completely thrown themselves into the life of their environment, without thereby sacrificing their own identity, without obliterating their own character, as did the Jews in Arabia.

WERE ADAPTIVE

"Apart from their religion and the superior qualities with which it stamps its adherents, they differed little from their neighbors with whom they lived in the closest relationship. They spoke their language, called themselves by their names, wore the same dress, and lived the same life. They cherished their religion with great devotion, and observed its practices in private and public. But even this was not of sufficient strength to level the tribal barriers which formed so distinguishing a feature in the social and political organisation of the Arabs. Every tribe, whose members claimed either common descent, or political union, constituted a separate unity. It was led in peace and war by its Sheikh or patriarch, and had little in common with the other tribes. If two or three tribes combined, by common consent, it was on political grounds and not through any national feeling.

"Three such powerful Jewish tribes lived around the town of Medina which was situated in a luxuriant plain about the middle of the Arabian peninsula. Two of these, kuown as the Banu Kuraiza, and Banu Nazir, who also called themselves Al Kahainani, the priests, inhabited the northern part of Medina. They lived in large villages strengthened by numerous forts from which they fought the ravaging beduins and other hostile tribes with whom they came in conflict. In time of peace they diligently cultivated their fields which were thickly planted with palm-groves, and reaped their abundant crops of corn and dates.

"In addition to these two, there lived in Medina the warlike and most powerful tribe of the Jews, the Banu Kainuka. They represented the industrial class of the Arabian Jews, most of them being silversmiths and goldsmiths, and possessing their own market for their produce. The members of this tribe differed slightly in their ways and customs from their neighboring coreligionists, a fact which would suggest that not all Jews settled in Arabia at the same time.

"About four days journey Northeast of Medina was situated the city of Khaibar with its large dependent territories. This province was almost totally inhabited by Jews who had grown wealthy by commerce as well as agriculture. Their rich domain was partly cultivated with grain, and planted with groves of palm-trees; partly devotrd to pasturage and covered with flocks and herds. It had many strong castles and impregnable forts to protect the inhabitants from any attack that might be made against them. So secure did the Jews feel there in their homes that they found no need to combine and form a compact body to protect their common interests. They lay scattered in separate settlements on the surface of an extensive area. Every community formed a separate body in itself, their center of unity being the fortress or castle where they sought protection in time of danger.

A VENERABLE CITY

"The venerable antiquity of the city of Khaibar, and the want of cohesion among its Jewish inhabitants might lend plausibility to the theory of Rappaport that the Jews of Khaibar were the descendants of the Rehabites of whom mention is made in the Book of Jeremiah chap. 34. In faithful obedience to the behest of their father, these Rehabites drank no wine, built no houses, sowed no fields, and planted no vineyards. They observed a rigorous temperance and lived a nomadic life till they came to the district of Khaibar and settled on its fertile soil.

"Thus when the Jews could no longer find safety in their own land they sought it in the depths of the Arabian deserts which remained unchanged, almost unaffected by the events which convulsed the rest of Asia. Here they brought over the seed of an ancient civilisation, and slowly and painfully sowed it on the soil of a semi-barbarous land. The roving Arabs were taught the peaceful pursuits of life, to use the spade and plough as skilfully as the bow and lance. Steeped in debased idolatry, and ignorant of any higher form of religion, they listened in wonder to the moral teachings of Judaism and adopted many of its practices. They heard the stories of the creation, the flood, the patriarchs, and sought in them the beginning of their own history. So great was the influence of the Jews, so many the conversions to Judaism, that some even questioned whether the Jews of northern Arabia were not of Arabic origin.

"There were two arts in Arabia which raised men to the highest places of preferment. The one was that of the great soldier, the other, that of the gifted poet. In the Arab was fulfilled the prophetic destiny of his ancestor Ishmael. He shall be a wild man, his hand will be against every man, and every man's hand against him. He was a warrior by instinct. He revelled in the exercise of his arms, and flew to the attack which all the lightness and agility with which nature equipped him. But he was equally roused by the appeals of eloquence, and charmed by the graces of poetry. Speaking a language copious in the extreme, whose words have been compared to gems and flowers, he was naturally an orator, but was prone to convey his ideas in the oriental style by apologue and parable. What the orator was to the Greeks and Romans the poet was to the Arabs. He wielded much power and influence. He controlled the mind and dominated the will of his people. His panegzric could raise a man to fame and power, his keen worded satire cast him into comtempt and derision.

WERE KEEN WARRIORS

"The Jews rivalled keenly with the Arabs both as warriors and poets. The necessity of being always on the alert to defend their person and property from the restless beduins made the Arabian Jews familiar from their infancy with the exercise of arms. They excelled in the use of the bow, the lance, and the scimitar, and the adroit and graceful management of the horse. While everywhere else the Jews were oppressed and downtrodden and their spirit was broken through long suffering and continuous persecution, in Arabia they remained free, and did not bow their neck to servitude. They were proud and daring, and defended their freedom with might and courage. Sometimes they even obtained the mastery and leadership of their neighbors, who respected their military prowess, their supreme culture and moral life.

"But far nobler was their distinction in the field of poetry. Endowed with the intellectual attributes of the Semitic race, penetrating sagacity, subtle wit, a ready conception, and brilliant imagination, they could not have looked at the charms of Arabic poetry without being impressed and fascinated with its grace and beauty. Courage, generosity, hospitality, the general themes of Arabic poetry, were too near the Jewish heart not to become fond subjects for contemplation. And though the form and spirit of Arabic poetry were so different from that of the Hebrew, it is remarkable with what skill the Arabian Jews engaged in this art."

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

December 2, 1921

Spot bar silver was up 1-8d. and forward unchanged in London yesterday.

The New York price advanced to 68 cents and the London-New York cross rate to 406½.

The only changes in the official quotations this morning were a rise in the Gold Dollar rate to 77¾, a drop in the Franc rate to 1060, and a drop in the Rupee rate to 283½.

The market, however, from the opening was weak, there being buyers for December Sterling at 3-9½ and for Gold Dollars at 76½.

The official Sterling quotation was therefore dropped, later in the morning, to 3-9, the Gold Dollar rate to 76 and the Yen rate raised to 64.

After the drop in rates the market was, for a time, steady, but late in the afternoon became very weak again and closed easy with no sellers of Sterling at better than 3s. 9d. for December, 3s. 8¼d. for January and 3s. 7¼d. for February.

The best sellers of Gold Dollars were asking 76 for December, 74¾ for January and 73½ for January.

The London and New York silver markets are reported as being quiet, and the sharp rise in the London-New York cross rate is attributed to the expectation that steps may be taken at the conferences now going on in Washington and London to adjust the European finances.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying power, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and, only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them wilfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used for years in children's complaints and I have found nothing better."
JOHN J. LEFFA, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.

"I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."
A. F. FESLER, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"For several years I recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."
EDWIN F. PARDEE, M. D., New York City.

"I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm."
EDWARD PARRISH, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a meritorious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies."
VICTOR H. COFFMAN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children, in fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."
J. A. PARKER, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

Dr. Sun And The Northern Campaign

BY ORRIN KEITH

WHATEVER the collection of apprehensive individuals which calls itself the Peking Government may do to convince itself that Dr. Sun's northern campaign is a "bluff;" whatever stories may be circulated to the effect that General Chen Chiungming is not in favor of the expedition; one thing is certain: to Dr. Sun Yat-sen the expedition is a reality. To the Father of the Chinese Revolution it is more than an expedition: it is a crusade.

When we reached Canton we learned to our disappointment that Dr. Sun had already departed for Kweilin, the headquarters of the Southern army, a town in Kwangsi nearly two weeks journey from Canton. Then we were told that he was still at Wuchow, just over the Kwangsi border, and would be there for two or three days longer. We could catch him if we started for Wuchow the following day. A hasty departure for Samshui by rail; then a night's journey up the great West River in a steamer of which the less said the better and we were at Wuchow, the largest city of Kwangsi. It is more Chinese than Canton. Its people are more densely packed, its streets are narrower, its odors are stronger, and the distribution of filth is more liberal than in the metropolis itself.

A few minutes walk brought us to the yamen which served as the President's headquarters. A card was sent up and within three minutes Dr. Sun was greeting us. The absence of fuss and waits and formalities was refreshing. There were a few guards about but not one tenth of what would be found at the yamen of any of the petty barons who now pass for rulers in other parts of the country. Secretaries were busy in rooms on this side and that but one did not have to pass a dozen or so of them to come to their chief.

The President was dressed in a plain brown suit with closely buttoned collar, a style he generally affects. He wore no insignia nor military emblems of any kind. Except for the guards at the entrance there was little to remind one that this was the office of the acknowledged head of more than a hundred million people and the headquarters of the commander-in-chief of their armies. In his new endeavors for China, Dr. Sun upholds his reputation for simplicity.

Upon the suggestion that it looked as if he were really going to fight the North, Dr. Sun took up the subject at once: "We are not fighting the North of China. We are fighting Japan. The people of the North will favor us. It is only the hirelings of Japan whom we have to overcome. Just now they seem to be in rather desperate straits. They are quarrelling among themselves and none of them have any money except what they can extort from the people by force."

"What of Wu Pei-fu? Will he not prove a stumbling-block?" The answer came promptly and there was entire confidence in his voice. "We can defeat Wu Pei-fu if he fights. Yunnan and Kweichow and the two Kwangsi are wholeheartedly in this struggle. There are but a few of the Szechuen leaders who are not with us and they will be overcome at once if they attempt to keep that province from joining us. In Hunan Chao Heng-ti will either be forced to take up our cause or leave the province. The Hunanese, both the people and the army, are entirely in sympathy with the southern cause. Then there is Shensi. The people and leaders there are also sympathetic and will almost certainly join if they see the struggle has really commenced. Thus Wu Pei-fu is practically surrounded, and with many more troops than he has himself. He has no money to pay his men except what he can wring from the merchants and banks against their will. This is undermining the morale of his men and turning the people against them. Wu's defeat is only a matter of time—if he fights. But Wu is a sensible man. He knows these things as well as we do. It may be that he will decide to avoid useless slaughter and throw in his lot with us. At least he will have his professions of loyalty to the cause of popular government put to the test. If he is sincere he knows that there is much more likelihood of reforms in this direction if we are successful than there ever will be under his friends in the North."

The delicate matter of the relations between Dr. Sun and Chen Chiung-ming was croached. I told him of the constant rumors of a breach between them and that General Chen was not in favor of the Northern expedition and would not support it. "General Chen and I have worked together for sixteen years and he has always been a loyal fighter for the cause of a republican China. He will not desert that cause now. He is an officer of this Government and he will obey the orders of this Government. If he does not, he will have to go and some one else will be put in who will obey." But what of the power to do this? Has not General Chen the army and much popular support? If he refused to join, could you oust him? Dr. Sun's eyes harrowed slightly and a flash came into his eye which indicated the man of action rather than the calm philosopher to whom we had been listening. He held out his hand and curled the fingers tightly into his clenched first. "General Chen," he said, "I have in the hollow of my hand!"

His manner betrayed a measure of irritation but I could not be sure whether it was with a refractory subordinate or with the reiteration of the story of disagreement between him and General Chen. He insisted that Chen was obeying and would obey with all loyalty the orders of the Government. He insisted that the stories of lack of harmony were pure fabrications. And yet there was lacking here the appearance of entire confidence which had characterised his earlier remarks on the possible fortunes of the campaign. He left the impression that, although Chen might be obeying orders, he was doing so without too much enthusiasm.

The President had agreed to address a meeting of the Kuo Ming Tang and invited us to accompany him. The meeting was held in the courtyard of a large house on one of the narrow streets of the city. It was not a large meeting. There were perhaps eighty or ninety men and a score of women. But they were a most intelligent group. There were but one or two of the dull sodden unresponsive type that is so frequent about Peking. The rest were keen and alert. The meeting was apparently open to all. There were four or five soldiers acting as policemen about but they were in no wise officious and made no effort to examine credentials of those who asked admittance.

The President was first introduced. He was received with prolonged applause. He spoke quietly throughout, seldom raising his voice above a conversational tone. He spoke in the diabolical Cantonese dialect so we could get no hint of what he was saying, but there was nothing oratorical or spirited in his manner at any time. Nonetheless his remarks frequently drew a burst of applause from his listeners which seemed much more spontaneous and enthusiastic than that given the later speakers. When he finished they rose as one man and applauded vigorously for some minutes.

Our next chance to talk with Dr. Sun was over the teacups in his home that afternoon. At his request we had gone to the yamen and he took us to his house. It was several hundred yards through narrow crowded streets from the yamen to the house. Yet Dr. Sun walked with us apparently without consciousness that all eyes were upon him. There were two men six or eight yards ahead of us and one as far behind. But these were his only guards. He seemed to have no fear of harm. We learned afterwards that he often walked out into the country with only one or two companions. Dr. Sun's democracy is of a very practical kind. It is in striking contrast with that of the prisoner in the Sea Palace at Peking.

The subject of the Washington Conference came up. Dr. Sun commented on the general opinion that Great Britain held the key to the situation and that her action would determine the issue of war or peace in the Pacific and Asia. He differed with this view. "It is not Great Britain that holds the key to peace in Asia and the Pacific. It is China. Japan's career of conquest is based upon her domination of China. Her first attack was upon China in 1894 and all of her subsequent advances have been made at China's expense. If China can throw off the Japanese yoke there will be no need of war in the Pacific. To carry on such a war Japan must make use of China's resources and China's people. Without them she would be beaten at the very start. That is why she has spared no effort and no expense to buy up the corrupt mandarines who have usurped the Chinese Government. So it is against Japan and the traitorous officials at Peking that the Chinese people must make war. The freedom of China is the quickest and surest way to peace in the Far East."

There was impatience in his tone as he went on to speak of the attitude of the Powers toward China. "The present government at Peking exists solely because of foreign recognition. It has no support whatever among the Chinese people and if the Powers would withdraw recognition it would fall to pieces in short order. I called the attention of the American Minister to this last May. The matter was considered and the suggestion given out to a British journalist that all the Powers should withdraw their recognition at the same time. It was to test the sentiment of the other Powers. But Great Britain and Japan raised such strong objections that it looked as if America's withdrawal might bring on war with both these Powers. And so the matter was dropped. But America should take the lead in withdrawing her recognition. She has deservedly won the regard of China and she should not lose it by passively supporting the aggressive designs of other Powers."

In regard to the attitude of the southern Chinese toward Great Britain, Dr. Sun said it was as bitter as that of the northern people toward Japan. "We feel the pressure of British aggression in this region just as the northern people feel that of Japan. Of course we have not had in recent years any military aggression by the British such as the Japanese campaigns of murder and loot in eastern Manchuria. The British do not murder our people and burn their homes as the Japanese do, but they are as quick as the Japanese to enlarge their territory and to take advantage of any turn in the political situation to accomplish their aims. It is only a little more than twenty years since Kowloon was taken from us. During the European war the Government of Hongkong had its plans all laid to seize the territory between Kowloon and the East River, thus bringing the British lines right up to Canton. Whether they had any instructions or support from the home government I do not know, but the Hongkong authorities were ready. Then their is the infamous Cassel contract concluded with the Kwangsi militarists who were in temporary control of Canton last year. Is not that evidence of the same spirit of aggression?"

We returned to the campaign against the North. "We are going to try to take real constitutional government to the people of the northern provinces and to free them from the yoke of militarism under which they are now suffering. What the result will be only time can tell but we are fully confident of our ability to defeat what forces may be brought against us. Our men are fighting for a principle and every other army in China is fighting merely for pay. Our effective numbers are fairly equal and with such conditions the odds should be in our favor. At any rate we shall try our best, knowing that if we are defeated now that it is only temporary and that the cause for which we are fighting must be victorious in the end."

We left him to start for Kweilin the following day. He makes a strange impression, this man who has been the center of China's revolution for more than twenty years. "Dreamer"? Yes, But after all a dreamer who has accomplished a great deal in the brief span of his life. He dreamed the Chinese Revolution and 1911 saw it come half-true. Now he is dreaming again and who knows what the coming year will bring?

Applause In Many Lands

Applause in Swedish—can the Frenchman understand it? Or applause in English—can the Russian understand it? They are very different kinds of applause, according to Miss Claire Dux, who has heard audiences all over the continent and in England after they have heard her, but has never bothered with an interpreter to tell her what they meant. The audiences of many lands may speak as many different tongues outside their opera houses, but to the artist who sings in the universal language they talk in a language just as universal, says Miss Dux, who recently passed through New York on her way to Chicago to learn for the first time how American audiences speak to their artists, when she makes her debut in November in leading soprano roles for the Chicago Opera Company.

"It is really only in different dialects of the same speech that the people of different lands speak to the singer," said Miss Dux. "But no one mistakes their meaning. It is a very simple tongue to master. The audience may not know the language in which the singer is given a role, but it understands the music. So the singer may not speak the language of the land, but the response of the listeners is none the less intelligible.

"Of course, music lovers conduct themselves very differently in each country, just as audiences have conducted themselves differently in different ages. It was thumbs up or thumbs down in Nero's time for the gladiator. But each land has its accents in its language of approval. In fact, in Sweden they have a definite way of accenting their applause. Many times I have heard audiences in Stockholm pick up a rhythm in applauding that was perhaps started by a listener in a remote corner of the auditorium. In an instant all would be striking their hands together in a rhythm like that of the big bass drum in a parade. I was very much surprised to learn that that sort of applauding here in America is considered bad taste and if it occurs in a moving picture theater or vaudeville in a small town is usually laid to the prank of some boys who want to express their disapproval of an act and drown it out.

"Yet, despite this way of showing their pleasure, the audiences of the Scandinavian countries are the most restrained of all. They are as warm as the Italians, even if they are nearer the North Pole, but the boy of 9 years is taught that it is a sign of strength never to show his feelings too freely, and that restraint does not leave them even in listening to music. They never give vent to individual bursts of emotion, and perhaps take the method of applauding in unison as a way of making up for it. And in Sweden, also, the poets compose delicate verse to their favorite singers, which they send to them or publish.

"At The Hague, I have seen audiences substitute chairs for hands. There were chairs there with cane seats and at the end of an act the people would stand up and rattle the seats, keeping time with each other.

"But the Russians are the most voluble of all. It is ten years since I sang in Russia and the language of the audience may have changed since. But at that time they had dialects all their own. The ladies would sometimes throw their pearls on to the stage. I have seen them take their earrings off and throw them on, too. And these were only the grace note added to the basic speech that consisted of standing on the seats, waving and shouting. When their enthusiasm is aroused, it is fanatic.

"I have heard it said that the English are phlegmatic. Yet their response to music is as energetic as any, if not as individualistic as some. They limit themselves mostly to applause, but it makes up in sincerity what it may lack in the way of exhibition. I was surprised to learn how fond the English are of old music. I thought they would not like Mozart, and yet Mozart was the greatest success in London. There was a wonderful reception for 'The Magic Flute,' which I sang under Sir Thomas Beecham, who has done more than any other man to introduce real art into London.

"The Italians are very excitable when they are aroused by music. If someone should suddenly come into an Italian Opera House from outside, without having been stirred by the music, while the audience was expressing its opinion of the artists behind the curtain, it might appear to that outsider like an assemblage of fools. And yet the Italians do not seem to be really as warm as some other audiences. They have striking ways of expressing themselves. I remember in Milan, a coloratura soprano was meeting with disapproval, and a member of the gallery, in order to make sure that he was expressing himself completely, picked up a chair and threw it to the stage. A Russian audience, while perhaps even more demonstrative in approval, would have been more polite in disapproval; it would have tried a hint, rather than a hit, to give the soprano an inkling of its feelings.

"Both Italians and French interrupt an opera for the repetition of a particular passage which they like. Of course the artist dislikes this very much, even if it is pleasing. In both countries, while singing Visse d'Arte in 'Tosca,' at the end of which it is necessary to the acting to fall to the stage, I was forced to get up again, go back to my chair and start it over, while poor Scarpia sat at one side laughing.

"I think that the war has made a change in audiences. If anything, they are warmer now than before. Music seems to mean more to them. European audiences are not any longer composed only of cultivated persons, but of the general public. Its appeal seems to be luring persons into the opera houses from a wider and wider public, perhaps because the Europeans want to lose themselves in music and forget the hardships they have been through. Of all the stage-door crowds that I have seen, the largest were in Germany.

"When you ask me about Caruso, you bring sadness to me. I knew him. I sang 'La Boheme' with him in Berlin long ago. I can never forget how much he did for me, that he helped me and helped me make my career."

Outlets For Japan

Neighboring Chinese Territory Offers No Solution Of Her Problem

BY TA CHEN
(New York Times)

While the Washington Conference is drawing near, the Mikado's spokesmen have repeatedly declared that Japan's policy of commercial and territorial expansion is based on an economic necessity, as she must find outlets for her surplus population. For the last two decades, her emigrants to various countries have amounted to large numbers. Unfortunately, several nations have recently enacted laws prohibiting Asiatic immigration. Cold regions such as Siberia and tropical countries such as Java are not particularly attractive to the Japanese, as the Japanese race has shown small capacity to acclimatisation. In force of these circumstances, the Japanese have a strong tendency to colonise in Manchuria, Shantung and Fukien, where the climate is relatively more agreeable to them, and where folkways and social usages of the people are fundamentally similar to their own.

The question then arises: By so doing is Japan able to alleviate materially the pressure of her population? First let us consider the density of Japanese and Chinese population. Kioto-fu and Nagasaki-ken, from which a large body of emigrants is drawn, are peopled at 304 per square kilometer (or 118 per square miles) and 252.7 per square kilometer (or 98.7 per square mile) respectively. Many have emigrated to Shantung, whose density is 328 to a square mile; and to Fukien, whose density is 282 to a square mile. The Japanese have thus come to places where the struggle for existence is appreciably severer; and yet they are telling the world that they are solving their surplus population problem! In Manchurian villages where the density is low, the Japanese are not able to compete successfully with Chinese farmers, as the latter generally surpass them in efficient management and cheap labor. In other "spheres of influence," sharp practices of Japanese exploiters are far more ruthless than those of Western capitalists. This induces the grieved Chinese to say that "though both the European and the Japanese bleed us, the latter hurts."

Moreover, Japanese emigrants to China have moved from a relatively higher wage level to a lower wage level, as the following table will show:

| Occupations. | Dalny (Daily Wage in Yen.) | Japan (Average Wage in Yen.) |
|---|---|---|
| Blacksmiths | .33 | .91 |
| Bricklayers | .30 | 1.22 |
| Carpenters | .50 | .97 |
| Day laborers | .30 | .70 |
| Farm laborers | .. | .56 |
| Glaziers | .37 | .. |
| Joiners | .50 | .. |
| Masons | .53 | .. |
| Stonecutters | .50 | 1.11 |
| Tile roofers | .44 | .99 |
| Painters | .40 | .85 |
| Tailors | .50 | .79@.97 |
| Tobacco cutters | .. | .75 |

Even giving some allowance to small differences in the cost of living in these two regions, the Japanese in Dalny are actually receiving much lower wages than their brethren in the same occupations in Japan. Furthermore, in Japan, wages and living cost keep pace with each other fairly closely, as the Osaka Department of Industries has recently shown that, taking 1914 as the base year, wages have up to 1920 increased 163 percent, and the wholesale prices 170 percent. In China, the Chinese Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce has found for the corresponding period that the wholesale prices in Shanghai, for example, have increased 140 percent, whereas the increase in wages hardly exceeds 80 percent. The big gap between the rate of increase in wages and in living cost has caused serious maladjustments in the Chinese population, and has vitally affected Japanese in China. Generally speaking, Japanese colonisation in China today is not an economic success. There appear no great inducements for further influx of Japanese in any large numbers. In what ways, then, can Japanese emigration effectively relieve overcrowdedness in Japan?

Classics Will Be Taught In Pres. Hsu's New College

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Nov. 28.—President Hsu Chih-chang, according to Chinese news sources, has decided to found a university for the study of the Chinese Classics, which, the President is reported to believe, have been sadly neglected by the rising generation of Chinese.

The University is sure to be a success, say the reports, because it will never suffer from financial stringency, as the other national schools in the Capital are doing. It will be financed entirely from the pocket of the President himself.

Moreover, the pushing of the project has been entrusted to no less worthy hands than those of Mr. Chu Chi-chin, who received for the President the degree of Doctor from the University of Paris, for the good work he has accomplished in the development and support of education, not only in Peking, but all over China. Mr. Chu Chi-chin expects to be very active in the near future.

GERMANS AGAIN HAVE MINISTER

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Nov. 28.—Dr. Adolph Boye, the new German minister to the Republic of China, arrived in Peking on Saturday morning accompanied by Mrs. Boye and one attache. The Chinese Government has been officially notified of the arrival of the German plenipotentiary who is expected to present his credentials within the next few days.

Dr. Boye has been in the diplomatic service of his country both in China and in Japan acting as a consular official in both countries. He is a financial expert rather than a diplomat and his most recent post was the head of the economic bureau of the German foreign office, during the war, having returned from South Africa where he represented a prominent German ambassador at Vienna. From this post he returned to Berlin after the revolution to take up the duties of the economic bureau of the Foreign Office.

Dr. Boye spent some time in Japan on his two month's trip from Germany and came on to China through Korea. He was met at Mukden by members of the German legation in Peking who accompaned him to this city on the special car attached to the regular Mukden-Peking train getting in at 10:15 Saturday morning.

The Week's Market Report

In their weekly report on the Shanghai Piece Goods Trade, Messrs. Noel, Murray and Company write as follows:

Cotton.—Prices have again eased off and in Liverpool yesterday were 10.90d. for Spot Good Mids, 10.91d. for January, and 10.92d. for March. Bengals were up to 8.40d. and Egyptians at 20d. are ⅝d. cheaper. In Bombay, Broach has gone back to Rs. 438.

Home Market.—A 24 hours' week is being worked by many of the mills and the tendency appears to be towards slightly lower prices. In some cases goods for delivery two or three months ahead are already made and could be shipped off at once if purchasers so desire. The Financial Times in its Manchester cotton report says that the market is hopeful.

Evidence is accumulating that India will buy soon. China is very quiet, but the smaller Far Eastern markets, such as Java and Singapore, are making varied purchases. The home trade is showing more life.

The position is about the same as it was last week, with, however, a feeling current that there may be an improvement in the near future. It often happens that just before the end of the year, the dealers take a last chance, especially if they are able to induce importers to allow them extended terms for payment after China New Year: thus it is thought probable there may be some activity in the market during the present month. From all accounts, the Settlement is going to be a sticky one, therefore it would seem to be advisable to be ultra-cautious about this question of credit and preferably to wait for the revival in trade that is promised after the turn of the year.

The Northern markets are offering the best opportunity at the present moment, both Tientsin and Tsingtao are buying goods. Deliveries have been fair in the interval.

Yarn.—350 bales of Indian Yarn have changed hands and 2,500 bales of Local Spinning have been sold, in addition to which the retailers have taken 9,000 bales. Prices have fallen very considerably, consistently with cheaper cotton.

Auctions.—30,876 pieces were sold this week. Considerably better prices were realised for the Greys and a majority of the White Shirtings improved their position from one to two mace. Bleached T.-Cloths, Jeans and Velvets all advanced a few candareens. Fast Black Italians were somewhat disappointing, many of the chops losing by two to three mace. Fancies were weak but Venetians held their own and improved at the close.

ROSENFELD REPORT

In their weekly cotton market report, Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld and Son write as follows:

China Cotton:—The general outlook during the past week cannot be said to have undergone any decided change when the situation is considered in its essential features. The Mills have not been in it to any extent, the activity being chiefly due to the manipulations of Speculators. Whenever Mill orders were lacking the ring relapsed into dullness, with a drooping tendency.

There is nothing to change our views regarding the trend of the market as outlined in the report of October 26, considering that there are no reliable indications as yet that prices will strengthen before Chinese New York. For the immediate future therefore we still believe the market to be a sale on any little rally, though we would take profits from time to time on fair breaks, when the short interest is likely to get unwieldy. It is a narrow market, and only moderate swings either way are to be expected, but, we think, with a gradual tendency towards a lower level.

Yarn.—The market during the past week has been keeping steady and at the close prices advanced some four to five taels with undertone strong. Shanghai Cotton Mills have sold 4,000 bales two Tigers 16's. at Tls. 137.00, Tls. 138.00 and Tls. 139.00 January, February, March delivery. Some 5,000 to 6,000 bales of local spinnings changed hands for export to Canton, Chefoo, Swatow, Tsingtao, Ningpo, Tientsin, Hankow and Fukien. From the foregoing, we look for better markets in the future.

SPUNT AND COMPANY

In their weekly report, Messrs. J. Spunt and Company write as follows:

China Cotton.—Although hardly any activity was perceptible in our market during the past week, prices nevertheless were and continue steady at the close; spinners appear to have taken advantage of offerings at favorable prices but the volume of business done on this basis is on the whole negligible, for no sooner enquiries transpired for substantial quantities than such was met with a firmness in the rates which in no way coincided with spinners' views. The sentiment among the larger holders of stocks is strong and their anticipation as for higher markets in the not too distant future, being influenced for the time being by the steadiness in Mid-Americans and Indians and the better feeling displayed in Sampin. Tone of the market, Steady.

Canton Officials Leave Philippines

(China Press Correspondence)

Manila.—Col. M. C. Chen, representative of Dr. Sun Yat-sen in the Philippines, and Jue Geowen, chief of the South China air service, returned to Hongkong en route to Canton on the Hoosier State.

Col. Chen and Jue Geowen returned without the two seaplanes the Canton government has here, but were accompanied by Albert Croft, former American flyer, who has been in charge of the training of Philippines flyers, and it is rumored that the Cantonese expect to accomplish a great deal in their fight against the North through the use of airplanes.
